We have begun a recruitment exercise for an Education Assistant role at JIS to start in August 2018.

A full job description and information regarding salary and terms and conditions are available from the school principal – s-walton@jis.edu.hk.

The ideal candidate would have proven experience of working with young children and/or in a school based environment and a keen interest to work in a collaborative, dynamic learning environment. The roles will primarily involve working with students in their activity groups, some admin support, learning materials preparation and supervision duties.

Interested applicants should contact Mr Walton at JIS for further information or send in a CV and letter of introduction, including at least 2 referees. Interviews for this position(s) will be held at the school in early May 2018. All enquiries to the school principal on s-walton@jis.edu.hk

Battle of the Books – Students vs teachers

On Wednesday afternoon during assembly time the JIS 2018 Battle of the Books team challenged the teachers to a contest! The students have had to read, memorise, and analyse 20 books over the last few months and will be in a competition against other schools next Thursday, hosted by Shatin Junior School. In-depth questions about each book are randomly chosen to test the skills and memory of the team. The 2018 JIS team did a fabulous job and easily beat the teachers team by 38 -21. We wish the team the very best of luck next week.

Curriculum in the Classroom – from Cath Wan PYP Coordinator

P6 Exhibition

For the last few weeks, it has been a pleasure to be part of the P6 class as they prepare for their ‘exhibition’. The PYP exhibition is an in-depth student-led inquiry where students synthesize all elements of the PYP curriculum: knowledge, approaches to learning (skills), concepts, attitudes and action. Students are also expected to demonstrate attributes of the learner profile. The IB requires students to investigate real-life, relevant issues.

This year, the exhibition will be under the transdisciplinary theme of ‘How We Express Ourselves.’ The descriptor is as follows: An inquiry into the ways in which we discover and express ideas, feelings, nature, culture, beliefs and values; the ways in which we reflect on; extend and enjoy our creativity; our appreciation of the aesthetic.

A crucial part of the exhibition is the creation of the ‘central idea’. A central idea is a generalisation that acts as an ‘umbrella’ for all the inquiries. It has to be broad enough to allow a range of inquiries, but it must be connected to the How We Express Ourselves descriptor. In practical terms, it provides structure and guidance to research. The process in coming up with a central idea is a challenge. This week in P6, students have dissected the meaning of the transdisciplinary descriptor, reflected and categorised possible areas of inquiry that they are passionate about and come up with several draft central ideas that link their passions with the transdisciplinary descriptor. Below are our draft ideas and a list of criteria from the International Baccalaureate.

At the moment, our draft ideas are being commented on by staff at the school and we would love to have input from the whole JIS community. If you have any suggestions or comments, please feel free to add your comment to the board outside the P6 classroom, or email with your comments and I will be sure to add them. Deadline for comments is Monday 5pm.

Next Wednesday, P6 class will discuss all the comments from the JIS community and use them to create the final central idea - an exciting time. Thank you for your input!

Criteria for central ideas:

- Written as one sentence
- It is a true statement
- Neutral (no opinions)
- Supports a range of inquiries
- Connects to the transdisciplinary theme
- Globally significant, addressing the commonalities of human experience

P6 draft central ideas (from students)

- 1) People discover, experience and reflect by doing their passion, therefore being able to express themselves freely and uniquely.
- 2) Human beings have distinctive ways of discovering their passions in order to express themselves.
- 3) Human nature impacts a way of expressing them to reflect on their own passion, creativity and feelings allowing them to investigate past and present forms of expression.
- 4) Extension of one's thoughts can allow them to freely express and uncover their own personality.
- 5) People express themselves through unique ways to show their creativity and appreciation of the aesthetic.
- 6) Personal beliefs and values influence the way we express ourselves.

Exciting news from ICHK: HK School Drama awards 2018!

ICHK is delighted to announce that ICHK has swept the board once again at the prestigious Hong Kong School Drama Festival. Our students participate in the festival every two years and we have established a pretty much peerless record of success, on which we have built once more this year.

The results of this year's festival have just been announced and we won in all the following categories:

Award for Outstanding Director: Liam Greenall

Award for Outstanding Actor: Chloe Tung ; Joaquin Dela Cruz ; Caelan Hermans

Award for Outstanding Stage Effect

Award for Outstanding Cooperation

Award for Commendable Overall Performance

Schools from across Hong Kong compete for the coveted awards. A team of judges visited ICHK last month and were left spellbound by our amazing production of The Forgotten Circus. The annual showcase saw students from across year groups mix circus, physical theatre and dance to create a visual extravaganza.

Parents, staff and friends of the school were similarly left amazed when they watched the production, which was likened to a piece of professional theatre.

These awards are a true testimony to what ICHK stands for. In our performances we see our 5+1 model come to life: young people, expertly supported by passionate teachers, encouraged to explore their interests and talents to the full. We see the culmination of always believing in students as learners – whether in the field of drama, sport or other settings, we witness students who are carefully challenged out of their comfort zones, respond and develop the resilience and grit they will need to deal with the many challenges that life will present.

ICHK has gained a matchless reputation in recent years for our amazing drama productions, and these awards are the latest to add to our collection. We don't do school plays, we do theatre.

Congratulations to our talented students and enormously dedicated staff for creating another enchanting and duly recognised masterpiece.

Best wishes,

Toby Newton
